Cincinnati Authority Tells How to Dry Up a Corn So It Lifts Out

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezeone applied directly on a tender, aching corn stops soreness at once, and soon the corn loosens so it can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

A quarter of an ounce of freezeone costs very little at any drug store, but is sufficient to take off every hard or soft corn or callous. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue or skin.—Adv.

Gates Lost Money By Serving as Governor.

Charles W. Gates easily is the most popular ex-governor of Vermont. He never used band wagon methods to secure results, and some important work accomplished during his administration was effected without the facts becoming generally known. A broad-minded, tolerant, kindly-hearted, sympathetic man has gone out of office after being conspicuously in the public view more than a dozen years. Mr. Gates, in giving his service to the state, has neglected his own personal affairs, and he will now turn to his mercantile business in Franklin and his farms there covering several hundred acres. Mr. Gates would have been richer by many thousands of dollars if he had not heeded the call to public duty. The representative from Franklin this year, by the way, is the ex-governor's younger brother,—Brattleboro Reformer.

Body of Dana H. Gilman Will Arrive Here from Sedalia, Mo., To-night.

The body of Dana H. Gilman, who died at Sedalia, Mo., of pneumonia, will arrive here this evening, accompanied by the wife and her mother, Mrs. Henry W. Hovey, who was at Yonkers, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Gilman came east to spend the holidays and when he left to return he had a hard cold, which grew worse, so that when he arrived at Sedalia he went directly to a hospital, where he died. Mrs. Gilman had remained at Brattleboro for a longer visit. Mr. Gilman was born in Pawpaw, Mich., coming to Brattleboro as a boy. He graduated from the Brattleboro high school and from Norwich university with the rank of senior captain. He went to Fort Worth as an engineer with the Colorado & Southern railroad. In 1908 he married Miss Clara S. Hovey of Northfield, daughter of Major and Mrs. Henry W. Hovey of this town. Major Hovey at the time being commandant at Norwich. They returned to Fort Worth but Mrs. Gilman's health forced their return to the east. He engaged in business at Brattleboro and after enlisting in Co. I, was elected first lieutenant, and captain in 1914. He left in May, 1915, to take his last position. Besides his wife and his parents, he leaves two sisters, Mrs. H. B. Chase and Mrs. Irving Ellis, both of Northfield. The funeral will be held from the Episcopal church (St. Mary's) Friday morning at ten o'clock with burial in the Hovey family lot here in Mount Hope cemetery. Ellis of Brattleboro, Mrs. Dana Gilman of Brattleboro (his mother) and Miss Eva Averill of Boston.

A "Dry Victory."

The problem of keeping dry states really and truly dry ought to become much easier now that the supreme court has upheld the Webb-Kenyon act which forbids the shipment of liquor into a state where it is to be used in violation of the laws of that state. The effects of the decision will be far reaching for it will make steamship, railway and express companies violators of the law. Prohibition leaders declare that the decision is second only in importance to the proposed constitutional amendment for nationwide prohibition.

The decision does not mean that liquor cannot be shipped from wet states to dry states as some appear to think. It is not the purpose of the law to interfere with the individual ownership or use of liquors—unless, indeed, a state should make it illegal for a man to take a drink of his own liquor, and if a state should become bone dry to that extent the Webb-Kenyon law would apparently make it illegal for liquor to go into a state for individual use.

Maine prohibitionists have long declared that Boston was the chief obstacle in the way of enforcing their famous law, and this latest decision will simplify matters for them. It comes at a critical time, too, just as Gov. Muliken and his enforcement sheriffs are making the Maine cities dryer than they have been in many years. Of course the liquor deputies have always made the stations and express offices and the wharves particular objects of their campaign, but this law gives them help at the other end of the line. It puts teeth of a sharp nature into the local enforcement program, since it makes the national government, in its capacity as regulator of interstate commerce, an ally of the local law, which is now presumably in for an enforcement that has been lacking pending the supreme court decision, will be waited with keen interest by the "wets" and the "drys" alike.—Boston Herald.

Why Colds Lead to Pneumonia

When a cold is neglected it attacks the lining of the lungs—then it's pneumonia. Father John's Medicine treats colds and prevents pneumonia because it nourishes the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—any other way of treating a cold is likely to lead to pneumonia. Not a "cough syrup" or "balsam" depending upon dangerous and weakening drugs, but a food medicine and body builder.—Adv.

Who Got Punished?

"No, you sit right where you are."

"All right, 'cause I'm sittin' on your best hat."
